ALLEGED BANDIT HAS JAIL HEARING

Arrested in a San Francisco rooming house in a critical condition, and now in jail here charged with robbery and attempted murder, Frank M. Brown was given a preliminary hearing in the county jail here Tuesday. Brown was to have been heard in the court of Justice of the Peace of Walter M. Bird of San Mateo, but as his condition was too serious to permit of his being moved, the court was brought to him at the jail.

Brown's arrest followed the discovery by the proprietor of the Sunshine Garage of a man in the act of rifling the till of that institution while the man in charge at the time was kept under cover of a revolver. Rose, the proprietor, being armed, comanded the robber to throw up his hands; a pistol duel ensued in which the bandit escaped after being shot.

Following the arrest of Brown in San Francisco, he was identified by the owner of the Sunshine Garage as the man with whom he had had the pistol fight. Brown was also identified by Phil Brand of the "Y" Serpice Station at San Carlos as the bandit who had robbed him at the point of a gun, while on duty at the service station.

Brown was bound over to the Superior court on two charges, and bail was set at $10,000 cash or $20,000 bonds on each charge.

TWO YOUTHS JAILED ON BURGLARP CHARGE

Two boys, Elmer Johnson, 18, and John Leland, 19, a clerk and laborer, respectively, are in jail and will be given a preliminary hearing today on a charge of burglary. The two were arrested Sunday night and charged with entering the Fat Boy Barbeque, into which they are said to have gained entrance with a hack saw. The boys are said to have admitted the fact and stated that they were starving and could find nothing to eat. They had been beating their way from the east, they say.

MARKING FORD PARTS

The name Ford goes on 2,651,000 Ford car and truck parts every day as a protection to car owners against counterfeit parts.

Trade-marking of Ford parts with the word in the now familar script began in 1914 when spurious parts first appeared. This trade marking was extended in 1916 when the markets were flooded with the counterfeits and today, putting the name Ford on genuine parts has become something of an industry itself.

Different standard parts into which the trade mark is worked during the manufacture now total 351 from the seventy-pound cylinder block to the quarter ounce switch key.

A special department employing eighteen engravers is continually busy making the stamp dies, while scores of other workers are engaged throughout the Ford factories in marking the parts.

In a majority of instances it has been found possible to incorporate the operation with the manufactoring processes. Spring leaves are marked as the steel is rolled at the mills. Drop-forged and cold-headed steel parts are marked by stencils cut into the dies. Some of the parts, like the crankshaft, piston ring, and rear axle ring gear—because of the sequence of operations and precision required—are stamped in separate operations.

In the engraving department an average of 700 stamps and stencils of the Ford trade-mark in various sizes are made daily.

"This trade-mark on genuine Ford parts not only assures to the car owner products that represent twenty-one years of study, research and work in developing the strongest materials and the most efficient design, but also stands as a safeguard against the counterfeit," state W. H. Goodwin, manager of the San Francisco Ford branch.

Marionetts To Be Unusual Sight

Every day brings nearer to Redwood City the famous Tony Sarg's Marionettes. With the "Pied Piper of Hamelin" in the afternoon for the kiddies and "Treasure Island" in the evening for both kiddies and grown-ups, a treat most extraordinary is promised.

It is one thing to see living, breathing actors, walking through their parts on the stage; it is something quite different to see puppets, gayly dressed and painted, moving about as if they were alive, and then to realize that back of the stage there are anywhere from six to a dozen real actors manipulating dozens of strings and some times three actors to a puppet, that these same actors must speak the lines for the puppets and so manipulate them that every motion will be in accord with the spoken word. Truly, it is an art to be wondered at, and for this reason alone the puppet shows would be well worth seeing; but remember that unfolded before one's eyes, there will be a glorious collection of scenes from the "Pied Piper" and "Treasure Island" and that everything will be as life-like as possible.

If you have not already secured your seats, do so now by filling out the application bank and mailing it with a check to the high school. Seats are being reserved as the applications are received, so it is important that applications be sent in immediately.

MUSICAL CONCERT

An exceptional musical treat is to be provided at the First Congregational church on Wednesday evening next by the organist and combined choirs of the church, assisted by leading vocal and instrumental soloists. A choice selection of music is promised and it will doubtless prove to be one of the very best entertainments ever given in Redwood City. No pains are being spared by Professor Richards to make the concert one of the events of the winter season. There will be no charge for admission, but a collection will be taken up during a short intermission, and it is hoped that there will be a generous response. Programs with full particulars will be issued in a day or two.

BIG DANCE PLANNED HERE BY 40 AND 8 TONIGHT

The "40 and 8" dance is to be held here tonight and the plans which have been in preparation for several weeks are at last complete. The 40 and 8 Society, an auxiliary of the American Legion, is composed of a number of young men of this county, and the affairs given by them are always well attended. The dance tonight will be in the Foresters' hall here, and will be supplied by music from Mullen's orchestra of this city.

FRESH PAINT

This is not the seventeenth of March, but the lampposts of Redwood City are shining forth in an abundance of St. Patrick green as the result of the activities of the town board, who have ordered them painted. The lamp posts are not the only objects about Redwood City which are turning green now, however, as the recent rains seem to have had a brightening influence on the whole landscape. Perhaps the poles are just green with envy.

Able to Endure Long Periods of Fasting

Some curious facts with respect to the capacity for fasting as exhibited by various animals are cited by Siegmund Urabin in the Umchau (Frankfurt), according to the Detroit News. He begins by observing:

"The power of the camel to do without taking food is regarded in most works on zoology as representing scientific peculiarities of animals. But if there were a general knowledge of the ability of many animals to fast for very long periods of time these instances would not be so overemphasized. It is, indeed, generally known that even mammals are able to fast for months during their winter hibernation, but it seems to be almost unknown that the same power exists among the lower animals. The power of fasting is much more widespread in them than was formerly supposed."

Mr. Urabin then refers to an experience of his youth when he put certain snails which had already withdrawn into their shells and closed the opening thereof, as is their custom, into a box, whereupon he forgot them for a period of more than a year and a half. He supposed they were inevitably dead, but when he put them into a vessel filled with water, much to his surprise, they came out of their shells and crawled gaily about on the table.

Cutlers Realize That Twain Had Right Idea

Many years ago Mark Twain wrote one of his characteristic little sketches about a boy buying a jackknife. His observation was that in the presence of the infinite variety of shiny knives which the hardware man had in his showcase any knife that the boy selected from the rest looked like a clumsy, inferior affair, but that as soon as the boy had made his choice and got away from the influence of all of the other knives his particular knife became a precious and radiant thing of beauty.

It was generations ago that the great humorist discussed this topic, but the cutlers have taken the lesson to heart at last and decided that they have been making too many kinds of pocketknives. Their interest in the matter is economic; their aim is more profits and they hope to achieve that end by ceasing to turn out many eccentric varieties of knives that are slow sale and not much good anyway. Their meeting was, in fact, a part of Mr. Hoover's comprehensive scheme for saving money by standardizing products and scrapping unnecessary models, but behind all of that one sees the eternal small boy, who is just the same now that he was when Mark Twain observed him relieved of an ancient embarrassment.—Detroit Free Press.

G. A. R. VETERANS SPECIAL GUESTS

Rev. Father C. E. Kennedey had as his special guests at the 9 o'clock mass at Mt. Carmel Catholic church Thursday, the four remaining veterans of the Cival war, who reside in Redwood City, and the members of the George H. Evans post of the Women's Relief Corps.

Father Kennedy in his address dwelt upon the cause which the citizens of this country have to be thankful. In a talk which was in fact a brief history of the United States he brought ont one point after another in which the American people are blessed. Thanksgiving Day, said Father Kennedy, is America's greatest day.

W. H. Sugart, H. B. Woodward, L. Werder and P. P. Chamberlain were the guests.

TELEPHONE AIDS IN BROADCASTING EVENTS

From thud of opening kick-off to crack of closing gun, minute to minute news of the big game between Stanford and California were whisked away over the telephone lines to newspapers and out through the air via radio, on the afternoon of Saturday, November 22. While 80,000 spectators animated the tiers of the mammoth California Memorial Stadium, in Berkeley and 10,000 clung to hills overlooking the contest, an invisible audience numbering millions were satisfied with accounts given out over the lines of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company by press box representatives of eight newspapers and the Associated Press.

A telephone system insuring accuracy in radio and press acounts was put in commission by stadium technicians to co-operate with those sending messages out over the lines of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, according to advices received by J. D. Worthington, district manager for the telephone company, from B. A. Glover, Berkeley manager. Two men equipped with portable field telephone sets were stationed down at "ring-side" with full visibility of each play. One man directed attendants of each great score-board, at either end of the stadium, in the showing of information. The other field man was in constantant communication with an official in the press box who relayed play by play accounts through a megaphone to press representatives. The latter necessarily confined most of their attention to telephoning news material to their various headquarters.

Woodside Notes And Happenings

This week records a chapter of accidents for Woodside. On Sunday last, Miss Jane McCann was thrown from her saddle horse at the junction of the Canyada road and the Highway and rendered unconscious. She was taken to the home of Dr. George B. Somers and remained there until the next day when she was removed to her home in San Francisco. Her injuries, though painful, are not thought to be serious.

On that same day, John Volpiano, while riding a fractious colt, was thrown and suffered a fracture of the left arm at the wrist.

While riding along the Canyada road on a bicycle, Wednesday noon, James V. Neuman, Jr., was attacked by a dog that evidently disapproved of that method of locomotion, and severely bitten on the right leg. The wound was deep and required cauterization which James says was worse than the original injury.

Mr. Aaron St. John and his wife of Colorado are spending the winter with his brother, the Reverend Benjamin St. John, pastor of the Woodside church. Our visitor is eighty-four years of age and may be regarded as an experienced pioneer, for he first went to Iowa in the days of its early development, and afterwards moved from there to the frontiers of civilization in Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Norton were hosts at a Thanksgiving dinner party on Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mighall ate their Thanksgiving dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn MacArthur of Redwood City and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ross, Jr., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Kroeck.

Reuben Taylor made a trip to the coast on Tuesday and brought back a sack full of toothsome abalones.

Taking advantage of the weather, some of our orchardists have already begun to prune their trees. It is interesting to note the development of the art, or shall we say the science, of pruning. A decade ago it was the practise to cut back the new wood on prune trees to about one fourth of its length and to shingle the tops of the trees much after the style of a Dutch hair cut. But that style has almost disappeared, due largely to the work of the experimental station at Davis. Here has been developed a type of pruning that it is claimed, will produce a normal sixth year crop upon a four-year-old tree and increase both quantity and quality of fruit upon old trees. For several years now the Agricultural College at Davis has been seding experts through the fruit districts of the state, working through the County Farm Bureaus and giving demonstrations of the new method in the orchards for the benefit of the growers.

We have become quite accustomed to having music with our meals via radio, but it was something of a novelty to carve the turkey with careful count of the male inhabitants and a liberal allowance of one hair cut per month to each, failed to justify the expectation of any large revenue. But times have changed, both as to the number of those requiring the services of a barber and as to the frequency of the need. So a barber shop has been opened in a dear little grove of trees across from the hotel and it has already become the chosen meeting place for the young ladies of the village. It is rumored that there may be adjoined thereto, a confectioners shop and a beauty parlor, though why a beauty parlor, I don't know as it would seem like carrying coals to Newcastle.

Sad Passing Of Helen Andrews

While in a San Jose sanitorium, where she had been to rest and regain her strength after an eastern trip which had taxed her energy, Miss Helen Andrews, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Andrews of Whipple avenue, passed away suddenly last Sunday.

Miss Andrews had suffered a severe attack of the "flu" several years ago, from which she had never fully recovered. The effects of this attack had been growing less of late however, and the family and friends were encouraged by her condition. Upon her return from a trip to the east, she complained of feeling tired all the time, and it was thought that the trip had been too much exertion for her. It was for this that she was sent to the Alum Rock sanitorium in San Jose.

It was at the latter institution last Sunday that the young woman was listening to the radio, and appeared to be in good spirits and feeling well. She complained of a slight pain in her heart and was given some medicine to allay it. She then fell into a deep sleep from which she never awakened.

Miss Andrews is survived by her parents, and one brother Foster Andrews of this city. She was a native of California, and 24 years of age. She has made her home in Redwood City since early girlhood, and her loss will be felt by scores of friends.

The funeral of the unfortunate young woman took place Tuesday from the parlors of the James Crowe Company of this city.

KANE CASE IS STIRRED AGAIN

A. J. Kane, head of the Kane Detective Agency, is reported to have announced that he would file suit for $100,584 against the city of South San Francisco for false arrest and defamation of character. Kane's contemplated action grows out of a liquor raid made in South San Francisco on the night of July 5, 1923. This raid culminated in a fight in a pool hall between patrons and the Kane detectives who had been retained by the city and over whose employement there has been considerable controversy. During the disorder of the raid Constable James Wallace undertook to interfere and was arrested by one of Kane's men on a charge of interfering with an officer.

Announcement of Kane's intention to sue followed the receipt of rulings of Superior Judge George H. Buck, overruling Justice of the Peace Ray Griffin, who had convicted Kane and three of his men on charges of disorderly conduct and false arrest.

For many years he has been prominent in the Republican activities of this county, and the lucrative position comes as a reward of his efforts along this line.

Nash has passed the cival service examination necessary to his appointment. Other aspirants to the office are the incumbent, McGrath and H. S. Dado. According to the current reports, however, Nash's name will be the only one submitted by the commission.

BUT ONE ACTOR RESEMBLED WASHINGTON

Located after a country-wide search, during which thousands of photographs were examined, and more than one hundred actors, including a number of Broadway stars, were interviewed in person, Arthur Dewey was selected by D. W. Griffith to portray the role of George Washington in "America," the romantic photodrama of the War of Independence, which comes to the Sequoia Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, December 3 and 4, with a matinee Thursday afternoon at 3:30.

Dewey was selected because he was adjudged to have the most perfect physical resemblance to Washington. Before the final selection was made Dewey and several other applicants were taken to Washington D. C., by Griffith, in order that he might compare their visages with pictures and statues of the first president.

Although some historical authorities claim that the Father of his Country was more than six feet in height, Griffith's research department unearthed an order written by Washington to his tailors in London, in which he described himself as "just six feet, and of medium build." It was found that Dewey was exactly six feet tall.

Dewey is a descendant of an old Revolutionary family, which in the last century migrated from Lexington, Mass., to the Middle West, settling in Illinois. One of his ancestors, Ashabel Smith, answered Paul Revere's summons, and fought valiantly on Lexington Green.

The first show will start both evenings at 7:15.

EIGHT MILLION ACRES FOR JEWS

The Ukrainian government has set aside 8,000,000 acres of land in the district of Ekaterinoslav to be developed by Jewish settlers, in order to relieve the extremely congested living conditions in the Jewish areas of the Ukraine.

Three thousand Jewish families from the smaller trading towns will transfer their abodes to the new area and the American joint committee has advanced to the government a loan of $100,000 for the improvement of the land.

There are about 400,000 Jewish families in the Ukraine and the Ukrainian commissariat of agriculture has approached the authorities of the Russian republic with a request for the apportionment of land in the Crimea and Volga districts for some portion of these families. It is thought likely that the request will be granted and that the Simferopol district will be chosen for the new settlement.

THANKSGIING

HENRY VAN DYKE wrote a little verse that reads has follows:

"This is the Gospel of labor—ring it ye bells of the kirk—
The Lord of love came down from above to live with the men who work.
This is the rose that He planted, here in the thorn-cursed soil—
Heaven is blessed with perfect rest, but the blessing of earth is toil."

Thursday was Thanksgiving Day. We all had much to be thankful for. But most of all, I believe we should be thankful that we are able to work. To be able to work, we must have health and strength. So we are glad to have health and strength. To work to any purpose, we must have a fixed place of residence, so we are thankful for our homes. We are thankful that our lines are moored to pleasant places. We love the land we live in, so we are truly thankful.

Could we count our many blessings we should every one know that we have much for which to give thanks. We live in a wonderful time and a wonderful country.

"But I think the King of that country comes out from his tireless host,
And walks in this land of the weary as if He loved it the most;
He puts His hand to their burdens, He enters their homes at night;
Who does his best shall have a guest, the Master of life and light."

So let's be thankful.

BACK TO THE HOMELAND.

FIFTY-FIVE years ago a Chinese boy who was ever afterwards called Sam left his home in far -off Cathay and started out towards the land of the rising sun. Although he was just a youth he had a wife and a couple of babies who stayed at home, as was the custom of the times. Sam landed in San Francisco and went to work. He sent his earnings home. In a few months he heard that another boy was born to the little mother beyond the seas. Sam would have liked to have seen this little fellow but he couldn't quite get ahead far enough to make the long journey. So he dreamed and worked for the time when he might go home.

For twenty years Sam lived in San Francisco. Then he moved to Redwood City. That was thirty-five years ago. He went to work for old See-Lung, the laundry man. He was a friendly fellow, so he became a favorite with the boys of town. He joined the fire department, and was present at every conflagration in the community and gave intelligent assistance whenever he could. In these thirty-five years, Sam really beame part of our town.

Thursday was Thanksgiving Day, and with thanks in his heart because he was to again see the land of his youth and to meet the boys he had seen as babies and the boy that he has never seen, Sam sailed out through the Golden Gate, back to the land of his dreams, where he expects to remain and finish the "Long Journey."

We rejoice with Sam that he can make the last turn of the road with his own people. He has saved enough to live in peace and happiness. He was ever a courteous gentleman who paid his debts and earned an honest living It is safe to say that Sam never did a dishonest act in all his residence in Redwood City.

We didn't have a chance to bid him "bon voyage" but we are holding the happy thought that Sam will have many pleasant days back in his old home town.

OUR FRIENDS, THE BIRDS

DURING the past few months the great annual flights of the migratory birds to the south have occured. The honk of the wild goose, though not as often heard as of old, has told us at night of the passing of these strong-winged travelers from the north. So the gathering of great flocks of blackbirds, sweeping and turning with one accord as though marshalled and directed by intelligent commands, have been common sights on the wide expanses of grain fields. Soon an occasional blue jay, owl or sparrow will be the only birds left to spend the winter with us. The wonder is how the birds that remain find food, water and shelter. We can all help by placing a few breadcrumbs, sunflower seeds or other bits of food about the house or in other sheltered places and maintaining a drinking dish which may be anything from a tin can lid filled with water.

We remember hearing of an old Scandinavian custom of the Yule time. The hardy Norse farmer, thankful for the blessings of the harvest, to extend his Christmas joy to the feathered friends who had aided him by destroying the enemies of his crops, would hang a sheaf of corn every day under the eaves of his house. We know of many Christmas customs, but none with more sense, logic and genuine Christmas charity.

MADE SAN FRANCISCO REPUBLICAN

THOMAS F. FINN the republican leader of San Francisco, has won new spurs in his able and efficient work in placing San Francisco in the republican column for President Coolidge. Through his co-operation the city was saved from La Follette. Early in the campaign, Mr. Finn saw that much work had to be done to save the day for the president, so calling his associates about him, he planned a campaign that called for much effort and hard work in the various districts. His abiest lieutenants were instructed to put forth their best energies in carrying the districts for Coolidge. As a result of Mr. Finn's work the city was carried by over 5000 votes. The republican party of San Francisco owes Mr Finn a debt of gratitude for his splendid campaign.

LAST OF THE DONS DIES IN BURLINGAME

The romantic and fascinating life of one of the few survivors of Mexican days in California came to an end in his Burlingame home this week with the passing Monday of Don Nicholas A. Covarrubias. Born under the Mexican regeme, Covarrubias had seen vast changes in his native state, and never tired of telling tales of the days before the American occupation. During the celebrations of the Portola festival in San Francisco in 1909 and 1913, Coverrubias was chosen to represent his countryman, the famous Don Casper de Portola.

Covarrubias was born in Santa Barbara in 1839, when that town was under Spanish rule. His mother, Marie Carvillo, was also a native Californian, having been born in Santa Barbara in 1815.

His father came to California from Mexico. Stories of father and son have become almost legendary. Don Nicholas loved to tell how his father got Catalina Island. "He was riding up from San Pedro with Andreas Pico, brother of Pio Pico, first governor of California," the son would relate. "Andreas' horse stepped in a badger hole and broke its leg.

"My father insisted that Andreas take his horse, a blue roan. Andreas accepted but only on condition that my father take in exchange the island of Catalina. My father in 1855 sold the island to James Lick of San Francisco for $10,000, a lot of money in those days. And what was one island more or less to my father? He owned all the islands in the Santa Barbara channel."

The latest sale of Catalina brought a million dollars, William Wrigley paid that for it recently.

Nor was Catalina all of the elder Covarrubias' holdings. He possessed, by grant, a tremendous area of land in the neighborhood of Santa Barbara.

Don Nicholas not only knew California's early history—he was a part of it. He could recall when the Indians drove out the ranchers near Santa Ynez early in the fifties and burned their homes. He was a member of the second San Francisco Vigilance Committee.

He was four times sheriff of Santa Barbara county, and once, to capture a bandit, he rode 90 miles in a day, from Santa Barbara across San Marco Pass to Guadalupe—a tremendous feat of horsemanship. And he did it without a change of horses.

He was keeper of the lighthouse at Point Loma for a time. With a puzzled air and a shake of his head, he would tell how he lost that position.

"I can't understand why they discharged me," he would say. "They had nothing against me except that I forgot to keep the light burning."

Under President Cleveland, he was appointed U. S. Marshal for southern California. Always a superb horseman, he proved at 70 years of age his ability to lean down from a galloping horse and pluck a coin from the ground.

He carried a dagger always though he was the gentlest of men and never was known to use it. But it was typical that he gloried in the wonderful temper of the blade, a bit of steel from old Toledo, and he would demonstrate by driving the point through a silver dollar without effort.

The aged Don is survived by three sons and a daughtor, Edward A.; Rosme and Andrew Covarrubias of Burlingame and Mrs. Howe of San Francisco.

A crank thinks he can turn the world upside down.

"A SHADOW HE CAN'T GET AWAY FROM."

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

From the Times-Gazette of November 25, 1899

George Douglass left for Hough's mill this week and will have charge of the property this winter.

Little Faxon Gomez, who has been seriously ill at the home of his his grandmoher, Mrs. John Kearse, is recovering.

The owner of the Capitol Hotel is doing a commendable thing in putting down a short concrete sidewalk adjoining his property.

The metior that was to have fallen upon our earth Monday crushing Redwood City out of existence has not yet struck. So those who have been making their assention gowns can add another frill.

The park committee of the Native Daughters met Thursday and opened bids to remove the trees from California Square. John Prendergast and William Flynn were awarded the contract.

The announcement of the marriage of J. Lee Pipkin of this city and Miss Ella Yantes of Kansas City, Mo., in Oakland next Wednesday evening brings to light a very pretty little romance.

At the International Christian Endeavor convention in 1897 Mr. Pipkin being in search of some friends, accosted a little group of ladies who wore the badge of that state, to ask if they knew whether or not his friends had arrived. Being informed that they had not, Mr. Pipkin left them; but on the next day, meeting them again, he renewed his previous day's acquaintance, and knowing San Francisco, acted as guide for them on their sight-seeing expeditions.

Among this party was Miss Yantos, and it became apparent before the week's stay was over that she and Mr. Pipkin took more than a passing interest in each other. Things went on in this way until the convention and sightseeings were over and good-byes had been said at the Oakland mole.

Now comes the announcement as before stated and explains the purchase and furnishing of a neat little cottage on the Island, where Mr. Pipkin will take his bride next week.

The Stanford boys are going to have their hands full to beat the Berkeley team on Thanksgiving day. The Stanford atheletes are no longer the sure winners of old.

WIDE ROADS PREVENT ACCIDENTS

Pennsylvania will not start on general highway widening program until the whole state is provided with travelable roads, says the state highway secretary. However 40-foot paving is favored on important trunk highways with all rights of way from 50 feet to 120 feet wide.

Western states have already started on a widening process for roads but instead of building 40-foot pavements they are putting about a 2-foot shoulder on each side of existing 18-foot pavements and covering the old pavement or macadem road, with a water proof covering of asphaltic concrete to absorb the jar of rapidly moving vehicles and thus prevent crystalization or destruction of non-elastic road surfaces or pavements.

In addition, wherever possible, they are widening the road grade from fence to fence with a gentle slope for drainage like a city street. This relieves traffic congestion on a narrow paved strip as it permits six to eight vehicles to stand side by side if necessary.

Eliminating side ditches and widening roads in this manner is the greatest step yet taken to eliminate automobile accidents.

LARGEST SAPPHIRE ONCE A PAPERWEIGHT

Declared to be the largest sapphire in the world, a jewel once used as a common poper weight has been brought from India and is now being offered for exhibition in London. The jewel is worth more than $35,000, weighs 916 carats and is in the form of a plucked flower with a short stem. It was acquired by a government official in India who, ignorant of its value, used it as a paperweight in one of the guard huts on the Indian frontier.

The discovery of the jewel was made by the director of Indian revenue when he visited the outpost. Its history has been traced to the twelfth century when one of the Bellalla kings, while on a pilgrimage to Ceylon, was given the sapphire by a Buddist monk. In the reign of this king the stone became the object of much veneration and was afterward captured by Malik Kaffur, the great general of Allandan. Later, it came into the possession of a state official, but was lost about 1875.

Experts are of the opinion that the jewel was a hair ornament of an ancient diety and there is, it is believed, a companion stone in existence.

Have You This Habit?

By Margaret Morison

DRIVING A BARGAIN

PERHAPS there had come to life again in Phoenicia Flint the spirit of some old Roman-British ance tor, a grim trader in pelts and tin. Who knows? At all events, there was the same aquiline profile, the same tight, thin lips, the same love of a bargain for its own sake and the rigor of the game.

When she was a young girl of seventeen, her habit of making a good deal was already fully developed. That is the age when femininity enjoys extravagantly exchanging its various frivolous possessions. It was a question of a brooch of Phoenicia's for the party dress of one of her friends. The friend was doubtful; and Phoenicia, with that old inherited trading instinct of hers, did not press her bid. Many ribbons and furbelows had changed owners when finally Phoenicia said as with an after-thought, "I tell you what I'll do; I'll give you this pin of mine for those gloves of yours—if you throw in your old party dress!" And the dress was Miss Flint's.

At the reduction sale at a small shop, one saw the glitter in her eye that meant business. She would hold a French hat off at arm's length critically with the expression of one who knew a good thing—really. Then she would ask for the original price and smile like an expert unbeguiled. Finally, picking up her gloves to depart, she would say casually over her shoulder, "I will give such-and-such for the hat," naming a figure several dollars below the marked price. Usually she got what she was after. And her habit grew apace.

Then Phoenicia fell in love—in love, that is, with as much of her emotion as had not been diverted to business. At all events, she wanted to marry a certain young man. Therefore, there naturally ensued a conflict within her personality. She went to her father; her fiance was poor; they couldn't afford to marry on his present income; her own allowance from the family increased somewhat would meet all needs so long as there were no children, etc., etc. And the bargain was made. That same day, Phoenicia called upon her aunt to announce her engagement. She had decided upon an early wedding, she said, although her husband would not be in a position to support her according to their standards for some time; of course her father was doing what he could, but that was not much. And so forth and so forth. The upshot was that aunt doubled the allowance, and Phoenicia faced matrimony with the sense of having successfully combined business and pleasure.

That evening she divulged to her fiance what a useful partner he was taking into his life. Phoenicia, however, struck no answering spark. Indeed there was coldness, silence, and a somewhat abrupt departure where she had looked for endearments and congratulations. When eventually her engagement was called off, she was for the first time in her life baffled. She had come upon a situation where business methods would not work. Her habit of driving a hard bargain had met its Waterloo.

EARLY MASONIC LODGES IN THE UNITED STATES

It is claimed that the oldest Masonic lodge in this country, is St. John's which was instituted in the city of Philadelphia in 1730 as No. 126, England, and met at the Bunch of Grapes Tavern. But early records in Pennsylvania show that in 1730 there were several lodges of Freemasons in that Province and in the Pennsylvania Gazette for June 26, 1732, printed by Benjamin Franklin, Philadelphia, appeared the following interesting item:

"Saturday last being St. John's Day, a Grand Lodge of the Ancient and Honorable Society of Free and Accepted Masons was held at the Tun Tavern in Water Street, when, after a handsome entertainment, the Worshipful W. Allen, Esq., was unanimously chosen Grand Master of this province for the year ensuing, who was pleased to appoint Mr. William Pringle, Deputy Master. Wardens chosen for the ensuing year were Thomas Boude and Benjamin Franklin."

ELEVEN BECOME U. S. CITIZENS IN SUPERIOR COURT THIS WEEK

The United States gained eleven new citizens as the result of the naturalization examination held in the Superior court here this week before Naturalization Examiner Edgar A. Bonsall. Bonsall, who was recently appointed to succeed Frederick N. Litleton, made his first appearance as naturalization examiner in this county upon this occasion.

Twenty-five applications had been made for citizenship, only eleven of made for citizenship, however. Those these were passed, who succeeded in securing citizenship represent six European countries and one of America. Italy France, Germany and England were each represented by two candidates; Switzerland, Portugal and Nova Scotia, each by one.

The newly made citizens are as follows: Querice Massagli, South San Francisco, a native of Italy; Frank Guenther, San Mateo, a native of Germany; Daniel Smith Fraser, South San Francisco, a native of Nova Scotia; Mrs. Juliette Bona, Burlingame, a native of France; James William Blythe, Burlingame, a native of England; Joseph Francis Escobar, Hillsborough, a native of Portugal; Frank Calonska, Redwood City, a native of Germany; Emilo Gracchino, Colma, a native of Italy; Herbert Richard Eldridge, Menlo Park, a native of England; Bruno Joseph Boezinger, Menlo Heights, a native of Switzerland, and Constant Frederick Prevost, Menlo Park, a native of France.

As is their custom on these occasions, the Women's Relief Corps conducted a patriotic exercise, lead by Mrs. Mary Winter. Each of the new citizens was presented a small American flag.

In the course of the naturalization hearing, a new regulation was announced by the examiner. This is that all aliens applying for citizenship, who were admitted into this country since June 3, 1921, must be able to show by records on file in Washington that they were legally admitted.

ORIGIN OF PILLARS OF HERCULES NAME REVEALED

While the "Pillars of Hercules" is a term which has been used from time immemorial to describe the two peaks that guard the entrance to the Mediterranean, few persons know their proper names and little of their history, writes George E. Holt in "Adventure."

They are commonly known as Gibraltar and Apes' Hill, but the native Arabic names are Djibel Tarik and Djibel Musa; that is Hill of Tarak and Hill of Musa or Moses. These names were acquired at the time of a raid into spain in the year 710 A. D. by some Berbers of Morocco. These were led by two generals, Tarikibn Zaid en-Nafisi, for whom the Spanish peak was named, and Musa ibn Nosair, whose memorial became Djibel Musa, in Morocco. It was of this expedition of only 100 horsemen and 100 foot, that it has been said "a simple raid became a conquest," for the Visagoths and Andalus were so weak that rulers and subjects fled in panic before the Berbers, leaving Islam to extend its conquest even into France, until checked at Tours by Charles Martel, "The Hammer."

Tariffa, the little peninsula situated near Djibel Tarik, and the town by that name take their title from another Berber of the same period, Tariff, a freedman of Musa ibn Nosair. From it we get our word "tariff," because from Tariffa "tax" was laid upon all vessels passing through the straits; that is, contributions were levied by force by persons who were little less than pirates.

CURIOUS FISH CAUGHT IN ICELAND WATERS

The British Museum authorities have notified the curator of the Hull Museum of Fisheries that a strange fish caught off the Icelandic coast by a Hull Trawler and landed at Hull is apparently unknown to science. There is nothing like it in the national collection.

The fish is one yard in length. It is very soft and flabby, and the head is after the type of a halibut. Its entire surface is covered with sharp and hard conical spines resembling white ivory. The skin is coal black. Its tail resembles a gloved hand, with eight fingers, beween each of which is a thin web.

In the center of the back is a rod-like feature with a tassel-shaped strucure. At its end is a red flesh bull, which, according to experts, is used as a bait to draw smaller fish near so that they can be snapped in the powerful jaws.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR ENGLISH JOURNALISTS

A London cable says: Two scholarships for English journalists, to be known as the "Walter Page Scholarships," have been founded by the English Speaking Union. They comprise a year's visit to America for the study of life and politics of the country, and their value is about $2,600.

Most of the funds for next year's scholarships are now available over in January. The holders will be chosen by a committee of the London branch, and it is possible that during their visit to the United States they will be affiliated for a short time with some American newspaper.

All the laws in the world cannot stop bacteria from breeding in foods kept in a temperature warmer than 50 degrees. But germs cannot thrive in the cold, even temperature of a well-iced refrigerator. Cleaning Without Odor by the

F. Thomas Process

Our many years of experience has taught us that it is impossible to do perfect cleaning with cheap, inferior methods. That is why we found it necessary to invest nearly $500,000 in the equipment of a plant and the establishment of an expert organization to do the quality of work demanded by our customers.

With the "F. Thomas Process" we not only remove every particle of dust but we return your garments without that usual disagreeable smell of gasoline. Every drop of gasoline we use in cleaning is redistilled and very highly refined.

Raw gasoline—the kind that you buy for your automobile—is full of heavy oils and unfit for cleaning fabrics. It is little better than ordinary distillate and leaves a sickening "gasoline" smell in your clothes

NEWS OF MENLO PARK

The inmates at the base hospital enjoyed a toothsome Thanksgiving dinner, the menu being as follows: Fruit cocktail, bouillon, wafers, celery, olives, radishes, roast turkey, dressing, giblet gravy, cranberry jelly, mashed potatoes, baked squash, mince pie, ice cream, friut cake, nuts, raisins, mints and coffee.

James Casey will soon be "one of the finest" on the San Francisco police court. He received his appointment this week and will don his natty uniform on Monday. Yesterday he resigned his position at Mr. Levinsaler's, where has been employed for a number of years. During the war Mr. Casey served in the aviation department of the army. Mr. Casey is very popular in Menlo Park, particularly with the ladies and his numerous friends greet him with the kindly appelation as the "shiek."

The foundation for a $100,000 laundry was begun at the base hospitall last week. The new building is to be the last word in laundry conveniences. At the last session of congress an appropriation was made for the building and for other structures, work on which will be statred right after the first of the year. A massive recreation building is to be erected which will contain a large and modern theatre, a library and quarters for all indoor sports, baths and showers. It is to be the largest structure at the institution. In spring the grounds are to be given attention. More lawns and shrubbery are to be planted.

Mrs. Alice Schenkel is quite low at the Palo Alto hospital. During the week she had a blood transfusion and yesterday reports from the institution indicated that she would recover. Her many friends in Menlo Park hope her recovery will be speedy.

W. E. Dale will remove his grocery stock from Woodside to the Duff and Doyle store on the corner of the highway and Santa Cruz avenue on the first of the month. The store has been occupied for some time past by Mrs. Packwood, who has been selling her stock at cost, and has about closed out the big list of merchandise. Mr. Dale is well known to the people of Menlo Park, where he has resided for many years. His numerous friends in Menlo Park bespeak success for him.

John Duff, a former Menlo Park young man, was here on Wednesday looking over the Duff and Doyle property here, the corner store of which is being negotiated for sale by Palo Alto parties. Mr. Duff has just returned from a business trip to New York and Boston. He is the agent in San Francisco for an eastern firm of coffee importers.

The Washington authorities are negotiating with Joseph Nash for the purchase of his eleven acres adjoining the base hospital which the government must buy to straighten out the line of its present holdings. The realty is on the corner of Willow and Bay roads.

Supervisor John MacBain is surfacing and macadamizing Merrill avenue on which is located the fire house with its valuable equipment. The supervisor may be commended for the improvement.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company is planning to replace the obsolete lamps of the lighting system here with model lamps which are being used with satisfaction in other places. In a short time several new lamps will be placed in town by way of experiment. It is said they throw a splendid light, the rays reaching out in all directions, covering much space. With these lights and extra ones added to the system Menlo Park may boast of a splendid street lighting system. The rapid growth of this locality demands modern conveniences.

Mrs. A. W. Gale on Tuesday evening at her beautiful home on Glenwood avenue entertained the members of the Companions card club. After the card game, refreshments were served. Mrs. Gale was assisted by her two pretty daughters.

Mrs. Henry Stevens and Miss Eva Campbell of Alameda were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Seale of Menlo Park.

The Coxin block on the corner of the Highway and Broadway was sold this week to Norwood B. Smith, formerly of the real estate firm of Smith and Cranston of Palo Alto. The property which is the choicest block in Menlo Park, has been owned by Mrs. Meta Coxin for forty years. A large two-story building is to be erected on the vacant portion of the property, fronting on the Highway by Mr. Smith, who made a fortune in Palo Alto real estate in recent years. It is said the lower floor of the proposed building is already spoken for by local business men who want modern quarters. It is not known what the property was sold for, but it is said the sum of $25,000 was paid for the choice realty. The first building on the lot was a blacksmith shop conducted by a man named Bulger in the sixties. There is a big demand for Menlo Park realty at present. No doubt the contemplated building of the Dumbarton bridge has caused the flurry and excitement.

The big football game on the Ewing field, San Francisco, on Thanksgiving Day between the Santa Clara University and St. Mary's College, created no end of interest in Menlo Park. The former and present students of the former institution residing here gleefully gloated over the prowess of their "Alma Mater. Their enthusiasm was however, strongly combatted by the alumni of old St. Marys, many of whom reside here. The friendly rivalry between the two well-konwn old institutions will result in athletic betterment for both.

Gems of Architecture in India and Italy

Taj Mahal is the costliest private tomb in the world, and was built by the Indian ruler Shah Jehan as a final resting place for the remains of his favorite wife, Mumtaz-I-Mahal, "the pride of the palace." This mausoleum, which is accounted by some critics to be the most beautiful building ever constructed, is one mile east of Agra, and its erection covered a period of 21 years, starting in 1629 and ending in 1650. It is built entirely of white alabaster, and is believed to have cost over $9,000,000.

Saint Peter's church is the largest and most imposing Christian church in the world, but is not conceded to pass the architectural beauty of Taj Mahal. The approach to it is through an open space, the Piazza di San Pietro, which is elliptical in form, covers several acres and is surrounded by colonnades, or covered driveways. In the center of this piazza stands a red granite obelisk 80 feet in height, which was brought from Egypt in the days of Caligula, but was not erected here until the Sixteenth century, when the church was in process of construction.

About the walls on the interior of the church there are altars, chapels, tombs, and innumerable works of art; while beneath the center of the dome rises the high altar, at which only the pope or a specially authorized cardinal may officiate; and above this towers the great bronze canopy, 95 feet in height. The total cost of the building is estimated at about $50,000,000, and considerable difficulty was experienced in raising this sum.

Amusing Things, Those Very Superior Beings

It is curious how differently people regard human beings, William Lyon Phelps comments in Scribner's Magazine. Some, upon entering a trolley car, hate everyone else in the vehicle; some look upon the crowd at a street corner with disgust; it must be wonderful to have such a sense of superiority, to have such childlike unquestioning faith in one's own splendid intellect.

The most amusing thing is to enter a fashionable hotel, and as you advance to the office desk, followed by your traveling bags, to glance for a moment at those individuals who, having already been there some days, now gaze at you from their settled and comfortable chairs. They look at you as though you were garbage.

In the same way, many people, traveling in foreign lands, hate all their fellow countrymen whom they meet. This scorn used to distress me, just as I used to be disturbed by the contempt of a waiter in a hotel or a butler in a fashionable mansion; now I am only amused; and instead of being sorry for myself, I am sorry for those who sit in the seat of the scornful.

One may have a certain satisfaction in a feeling of complacency or superiority, but such an emotion is not so desirable as the cheerfulness produced by a general sympathy for mankind.

Cow's Milk Largely Used in Manufactures

Should the humble cow ever aspire to trade-mark her products, the average shopper would be amazed at the labels "Made from milk" which would adorn his purchases—purchases ranging from horn-rim spectacles to chessmen, magazines to radio sets.

Three per cent of casein in cow's milk is the raw material for a kaleidoscopic array of manufactured products. Nor does this take into account that at our present rate of consumption every 12 persons consume the milk product of one cow.

Bread has a reputation of being the "staff of life," but milk more nearly fulfills that definition. Substitutes for our customary breads may be had; but there is no substitute for milk. Even the elimination of the casein from milk, the element which provides most of the by-products, would be inconvenient. Chemically, casein is the principal nitrogenous constituent of milk; popularly it is the "curd," and its first and principal use is for cheese.

Pepsin Has Rival

Pepsin, the digestive substance derived from the pig and largely used by medical men in treating cases of digestion, finds a rival in pharmacy in "papain," a digestive ferment isolated from the juice of the half-ripe fruit of the papaw tree. This substance is said to digest fibrin and albumen more readily than pepsin does. The fruit is sometimes made into jam, though the necessary boiling would probably kill the digestive ferments. Anglo-Indians say that a tough steak becomes tender when placed for a few minutes between two slices of papaw fruit, or even placed near a papaw tree.

Tribute to Healing Spring

The ancient and famous mineral springs from which the town of Bath, England, receives its name and fame, are rich in historical reminiscence. Between 1612 and 1784 it was the custom for persons of distinction who had derived benefit from the Bath mineral waters to present a brass ring to be fixed in the wall of the bath for the help and support of those bathing in the hot water. John Revet visited Bath in 1674, and appropriately presented a brass ring, which may still be seen on the walls of the king's bath. The inscription reads: "Thanks to God, I, John Revet, his Majesty's Brazier, at fifty years of age of July, 1674, received Cure of a True Palsie from Head to Foot on one side."

First publicaton in Times-Gazette, November 29th, 1924; last publication December 27, 1924.

Too many people are trying to save the world who can't even save themselves and who wouldn't be worth saving if they could.

On Spruce and Heller streets, on Stambaugh between Buckeye and Spruce and corner of Pine and Phelps streets we have a wonderful selection of new homes for sale, priced from $4,000 up. We will accept low first payment and then the same as rent. Will take a lot or an old house as part payment. Lambert and Walter, 198 Broadway, Redwood City. 9-27
